Potsdam plant upgrades having a positive impact

The R2,2 billion upgrade of the Potsdam wastewater treatment works (WWTW) is progressing well, and adhering to the planned project turn-around times.

Since April 2020, a number of important milestones have been achieved, including:

- the refurbishment of the belt presses, which are part of the first stages of effluent treatment;
- draining and cleaning of the maturation ponds, which retain contaminated effluent; and
- the installation of an upgraded ultraviolet (UV) system, which kills bacteria using UV light in the final stages of treatment.

As a result, effluent samples taken at the WWTW have shown E.coli readings that are well within the regulatory requirements. This indicates that the work being done on the plant is indeed improving effluent quality.

The project will progressively add new technology and plant capacity until its scheduled completion in 2025. Ongoing progress reports will be provided to residents via the local subcouncils.

Cleaning up: Upgrades to the Potsdam wastewater treatment works have resulted in cleaner treated water.

Significant road upgrades

A number of roadworks projects on the go will relieve congestion and improve the safety of road users.

Key projects include work on Belhar Main Road and the M12. Other major intersections have also been upgraded on Brackenfell Boulevard as well as Okavango and Fairtree roads. Significant upgrades include the following:

- Rehabilitation of Giel Basson Drive between the N1 off-ramp and Voortrekker Road. Work is expected to take another nine months.
- Rehabilitation of portions of Erica and Belhar drives between the Stellenbosch Arterial Road and Alabama Avenue
- Tygerberg Valley Road between Platteklouf Road and Lionel Solomons Boulevard has been upgraded to a dual carriageway. A future phase of the project will also see the section between Lionel Solomons Boulevard and Jonkershoek Road upgraded.

Road repairs are on a roll

The City is making great progress in tackling the post-lockdown road maintenance backlogs - but needs your help reporting theft.

Capetonians can take pride in the fact that the city's roads are generally in good repair. That's no small feat, as the City has (excluding the 150 km of freeway it co-manages with national agencies and Province) about 10 400 km of road to maintain.

To put this into perspective, that's the distance between Cape Town and Melbourne, Australia. The network includes 5 600 km of stormwater systems and around 1 200 bridges and culverts, and its insured value is around R146 billion.

However, under level-5 lockdown, roads and stormwater services were not considered essential, and the City's roads depots could attend to emergencies only. This led to many, many potholes.

With heavy rainfall after a prolonged drought, water seeped through the bitumen surfacing into the underlying layers, which resulted in potholes and surfacing failures.

The City's Roads Department is working hard to address this, and has repaired:

- 2 776 potholes during the five-month period from January to May 2020; and
- 13 655 potholes during the five-month period from 1 June 2020 until the end of November 2020.

However, with pothole repairs, preference is given to heavily used roads with a high impact on the economy, ahead of less-travelled roads in residential areas.

Even in "normal" times, the maintenance requirement is huge. It takes 20 Roads and Stormwater depots citywide and 1 500 staff to maintain roads and stormwater systems, and the City spends over R1,2 billion a year on maintenance and improvements.

Unfortunately, more than R4 000 000 of that had to be spent repairing or replacing uninterruptible power supply (UPS) systems that power traffic lights at 995 of the City's 1 578 signalised intersections.

The lead-acid batteries that power the UPS units have been stolen, or the units have simply been pointlessly vandalised. Aside from the financial burden, UPS theft and vandalism affects motorists and traffic flow during blackouts.

- Residents can report potholes, UPS theft and flooding to the Transport Information Centre on 080 065 6463 (toll-free, 24/7), or the City's call centre on 0860 103 089. Alternatively, e-mail Transport.Info@capetown.gov.za.

Don't ignore Covid-19.

Protect yourself and others

- Keep your distance. Wear a mask.

Sparkling service: Backlogs in street-light repair are being addressed.

An electrifying response

The City has attended to more than 150 000 electricity service requests since June, all the while adhering to Covid-19 health and safety regulations.

Due to reduced capacity as a result of the national lockdown, the Electricity Generation and Distribution Department had to prioritise streetlight outages, power outages and instances where electricity faults were a safety hazard to members of the public.

As a result, some service requests had to be flagged for later attention. In recent months, the Department has made a significant effort to catch up on the resultant backlogs.

While there may still be some delays in responding to certain service requests, the City continues to work tirelessly to bring its turnaround times down to the one or two days residents had become used to. The fixing of individual streetlights has also been phased in again, and backlogs in this regard are being attended to.

Cape Town is SA's most trusted metro

For the seventh consecutive year, Cape Town has been ranked as South Africa's most trusted metro by the Consulta Citizen Satisfaction Index.

The accolade, which comes hot on the heels of the city's recognition as the most sustainable metro in South Africa by Ratings Afrika in August, saw Cape Town achieve an overall score of 66 out of 100.

This was an improvement on the 2019 score of 64,1, and is more than 10 points higher than the average score of 55,7 for all national metros.

Notably, the City scored the highest in the category of trust, achieving 72 out of 100, which is 8,6 points above the average.

Thank you for your support as we work to clear backlogs

This year has been a challenging one for all of us. We've all felt the impact of Covid-19 on our lives and in our neighbourhoods. The national regulations have also affected the City's ability to deliver services to our communities. However, the end of the year remains an opportunity to reflect on the year gone by.

The year 2020 was not one any of us could have predicted, and we may not have achieved the goals we had set for our own lives. But it has allowed us to return our focus to the most important things in life.

The challenges we faced enabled us to be more responsive and caring towards one another. Capetonians are resilient by nature and have displayed this quality on countless occasions. I want to applaud you for your courage and kindness as we navigated our way through the pandemic.

As seen in municipalities around the country, Covid-19 has affected service delivery. Our efforts have, however, been ramped up following an easing of the lockdown.

Our staff have processed more than a million transactions since June 2020, including motor vehicle licensing and renewals, and have worked hard to clear the backlog. This is more than the 100 000 transactions per month that we process under normal circumstances.

We have also begun to fix the thousands of potholes resulting from a particularly rainy season. Preventative maintenance and repairs were first limited by the weather, and then by the early lockdown regulations, which declared road maintenance staff as non-essential workers, thereby preventing our teams from reporting for duty.

Over recent weeks, I have personally been visiting teams out on duty to check in on and boost the efforts of our city Roads teams. I have also gone out to communities and joined our Solid Waste staff to reboot my citywide clean-up campaign.

Work continues to clean and maintain parks and open spaces across Cape Town. Both City teams and appointed service providers are hard at work mowing and cutting grass.

One can clearly see the comprehensive effort under way by City staff to eliminate backlogs. All of this shows how committed we are to continue serving you as best we possibly can.

With the summer season upon us, we are seeing a rise in Covid-19 infections, so it is clear we cannot let our guard down. It is vital for our continued economic recovery that we continue to be responsible by wearing a mask and practising social distancing.

It is extremely important that each of us to play our part for the benefit of all Capetonians. Let us continue to show one another respect and kindness.

We can make 2021 better than any year Cape Town has ever seen, with your continued support! #OneCityTogether
- Executive Mayor Dan Plato

Clearing the licensing backlog

The vehicle and driving licence backlog has been cleared. To avoid queues, please use e-Services.

When the hard lockdown was announced in March 2020, all City licensing and vehicle registration offices were immediately closed. As a result, a significant backlog of transactions and bookings built up over the lockdown period, which meant that City staff at licensing and registration departments and offices were faced with huge backlogs when these facilities reopened in June.

However, thanks to the commitment of City staff and officials, the majority of these backlogs have now been cleared.

It took a Herculean effort, which saw many staff working evenings and weekends. But by the end of October, more than 900 000 vehicle registrations and over 50 000 licencing transactions had been completed, allowing the City's licensing and registration offices to return to normal and focus on meeting customers' immediate needs.

Despite the backlog having been addressed, there are still periods when customers may need to queue. The City's customer offices are typically at their busiest over November and December, and customers are advised to avoid the frustration of long queues and unavoidable slow service times by following the guidelines below:

- If possible, do your business with the City - including vehicle licence renewal - online or via e-Services. If you have not already registered for e-Services, visit www.capetown.gov.za to do so.
- For municipal account payments, make use of retail payment options rather than visiting a customer office. You can pay at any Shoprite/Checkers, Pick n Pay, PEP, Woolworths and selected Spar stores, or at any branch of the Post Office.
- If you have to visit a customer office, try to arrive as early as possible.
- If the lines at a customer office are already long, return later if you can.
- Pensioners (65 and older) and people with disabilities receive preferential treatment at all customer offices.

All visitors to customer offices will be required to undergo Covid-19 screening on entry, and to follow all health and safety protocols. Wearing a mask is compulsory.

Many customer offices will be closed on certain days over the festive season.

"High" there: The new 56 m turntable ladders can access a 22-storey building.

Hot new kit for Fire and Rescue

The City's Fire and Rescue Service is improving its ability to fight fires and save lives, thanks to planned investment in a range of new and replacement vehicles over the coming two years.

Already, the service has taken delivery of 99 vehicles, including four 56 m heavy-duty mobile aerial firefighting and rescue-lift turntable ladders.

These appliances are able to rescue 18 people at a time from a 22-storey building within just 12 minutes. They are also equipped with firefighting equipment and a cage to help extinguish fires in high-rise buildings.

Other vehicles acquired include water tankers and rescue vehicles.

In the current financial year, the service will receive an additional 34 vehicles, including foam tankers.

The recruitment of more than 100 seasonal firefighters is also nearing completion. These dedicated individuals will offer valuable support to the City's permanent firefighters during the challenging summer months.

Water restrictions lifted, but please still conserve

Thanks to the collective efforts of everyone in Cape Town, the city is free of drought-linked water restrictions - for the first time in six years.

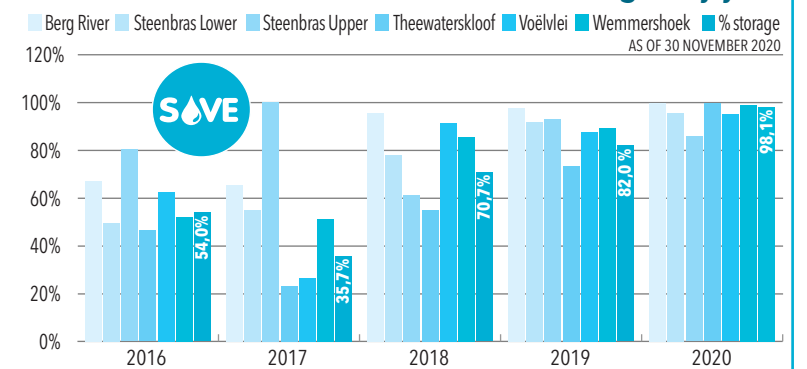

However, while stringent restrictions have been lifted, South Africa remains a water-constrained country. It is essential that we all continue to do our part to conserve and protect this precious and scarce resource.

Residents and businesses are reminded that the permanent regulations contained in the Water By-law still apply across Cape Town, regardless of the restriction level.

Municipal water may be used in gardens only before 09:00 or after 18:00, but never to hose down paved areas.

- The regulations can be accessed at www.capetown.gov.za/thinkwater or www.capetown.gov.za/waterregulations.

The complicated business of bins

With more than 850 000 wheeled bins in use across Cape Town, the City's Solid Waste Management teams have their work cut out for them ensuring that residents and businesses have their trash removed every week.

And when you consider the numbers involved in this collection process, it's clear just how dedicated the refuse collection team members are:

- No less than 129 specialised bin-lifting refuse-compacting trucks are on the city's roads every single day.
- Each truck in this fleet costs around R4 million and travels approximately 3 million kilometres per year.
- Each truck is manned by a driver and four-person crew.
- The crew members cover about 2,3 million kilometres per year on foot, rain or shine, collecting wheeled bins and arranging them for emptying into the trucks.
- The trucks complete about 45 million bin lifts per year.
- Refuse is offloaded at six refuse transfer stations or sanitary landfill sites across Cape Town.
- A total of approximately 570 million kilograms of refuse is collected in this way every year.

So, the next time you spot a member of a refuse collection team in your area, be sure to give them a wave of thanks for the excellent work they do.

Some good jobs news

According to the quarterly Labour Force Survey for the third quarter of 2020, Cape Town's expanded unemployment rate of 29,1% is the lowest of all South African metros.

The City attributes this achievement to its ongoing investment in job creation over the past six months, and its work to attract business investment into the city and region.

Between April and September 2020, the City's strategic business partners (SBPs) collectively facilitated R8,8 billion's worth of investment, created 4 980 jobs and trained 1 366 people. This was despite the lockdown and resulting economic downturn faced by the entire country.

Make the most of summer

Take advantage of our terrific beaches, pools and nature reserves - safely.

On guard: Trainee lifeguards go through their paces during an induction session at Muizenberg in late October. City lifeguards will be stationed at 26 beaches from 10:00 to 18:00 daily, and Shark Spotters will be on duty daily at 11 beaches.

This summer, visit one of Cape Town's many beautiful beaches, swimming pools, nature reserves and resorts. Here are a few pointers to ensure everyone has a safe time in the sun.

The City has appointed 330 seasonal beach lifeguards and 290 municipal pool lifeguards. This costs about R48 million in lifeguard salaries and R300 000 for specialised personal protective equipment (PPE) and Covid-19 related training.

Beaches

City lifeguards will be stationed at 26 bathing areas from 10:00 to 18:00 daily until 12 April 2021. Please swim only at beaches where lifeguards are present, and only in the areas demarcated for swimming.

If you are not a strong swimmer, keep to the shallow water. Do not allow children to visit the beach unsupervised.

The beaches monitored by lifeguards are: Big Bay, Bikini, Camps Bay, Clifton 4th, Clovelly, Danger, Fish Hoek, Gordon's Bay, Granger Bay, Harmony Park, Hout Bay, Kogel Bay, Llandudno, Macassar, Maiden's Cove, Melkbaai, Melkbosstrand, Milnerton, Milnerton Lagoon, Mnandi, Monwabisi, Muizenberg, Silwerstroomstrand, Strand, Strandfontein and Sunrise.

Shark Spotters will be on duty daily at 11 beaches: Blue Waters, Clovelly, Dappat se Gat, Fish Hoek, Glencairn, Klippiers Bay, Kogel Bay, Rocky, St James, Strand and Surfer's Corner.

Swimming pools

Most of the City's 35 swimming pools have also reopened, though some remain closed due to vandalism and theft.

Patrons will be required to undergo screening and sanitise before they are allowed entry, and must adhere to water safety rules and Covid-19 protocols, which allow only 50% capacity at any time. Showers at pools are not available, as per Covid-19 regulations.

Nature reserves

The City manages 23 nature reserves and conservation areas. Many of them home to rare and endangered flora and fauna of the Cape Floristic Region - the smallest and richest of the world's six floral kingdoms.

Reserves provide for many activities, including walks, birdwatching, fishing, hikes, trail running, mountain biking, surfing, boating, sailing, sandboarding, and 4x4 off-road driving.

Resorts

Bookings for resorts are open. Early booking is essential, as resorts are only allowed to operate at 50% capacity.

Unfortunately, camping sites will remain closed due to health risks. However, day picnic areas will be available between 10:00 and 18:00.

The City will prioritise regular cleaning and sanitising at all public amenities, but visitors are also asked to do their part by observing Covid-19 safety protocols.

BPO sector support

The City will be putting R55 million towards the Cape Skills and Employment Accelerator project, which will be offered in conjunction with the National Skills Fund, Province, CapeBPO and the private sector.

The project will create over 3 000 employment opportunities in the fast-growing business process outsourcing (BPO) sector, providing training and placement support for graduates.

Over the last three years, R25 million in funding has helped to create more than 5 000 new jobs.

Beware affordable-housing scams

Registering on the City's Housing Needs Register is the first step that residents need to take to be considered for the City's various affordable-housing opportunities.

The City considers housing opportunities on a first-come, first-served basis and takes age and special needs into consideration. Qualifying beneficiaries are placed on the register and are allocated opportunities as they become available, in accordance with the City's allocation policy. The process is systematic and highly regulated to ensure fairness.

However, residents should be aware of criminal scams. The City urges applicants to be aware of the following:

- There is no requirement to make any payment to have your name placed on the register. You also don't have to pay to receive a state-subsidised unit if you qualify for one of these.
- If you are asked to pay for a place on the register, or for a plot of City-owned land, it is a scam. Please report the person to the City immediately.
- Be aware of syndicates who try to sell land that does not belong to them.

City libraries are back in business

The City's Library Services are gradually returning to a full service offering, with 87 facilities now allowing walk-in visitors, browsing, two-hour study sessions, and internet access via the SmartCape system.

Library staff are strictly enforcing Covid-19 protocols, and all visitors are required to wear a mask, sanitise their hands and observe social distancing.

Some libraries are still only offering a drop-and-collect service. For details of the services offered by libraries in your area, as well as the capacity limits of each facility, please visit <https://opac.capetown.gov.za/>.

The following operating hours and borrowing periods currently apply for all libraries:

- Operating hours: Monday to Friday 09:00-16:00 and Saturday 09:00-12:00
- Loan period: 30 days
- Renewal: One renewal for an additional 30 days
- Borrowing privileges: 20 items including five audiovisual items (CDs/DVDs)
- No reservations or inter-library loans will be done at present.

Easier ECD registration

Early childhood development (ECD) is recognised as the foundation for success in future learning. However, only 30% of ECD centres in Cape Town are registered. This means more than 2 000 are unregistered and, thus, unable to comply with regulations and access support.

The City's Social Development and Early Childhood Development Department has developed an online tool to help ECD centres register.

For more information, please e-mail SocialDevelopment@capetown.gov.za.

No festive switch-on

For the past five decades, Cape Town has ushered in the festive season with its signature festive lights switch-on. Unfortunately, due to the Covid-19 safety regulations relating to large gatherings, this traditional event will not take place in 2020.

However, in an effort to support Cape Town's events industry, several smaller festive events are being considered as part of the inner-city revitalisation programme. These will be hosted in line with lockdown restrictions and health and safety protocols.

Switch over to prepaid power

The City has a R40 million programme aimed at converting old electricity meters to prepaid meters. These meter upgrades are done at no cost to residents and property owners.

Prepaid meters give consumers direct control over their electricity usage and costs.

Contrary to widespread belief, prepaid meters do not make electricity more expensive. In fact, switching to a prepaid meter allows qualifying residents to move over to the City's subsidised Lifeline tariff, which offers them access to financial aid and free electricity units, and reduces their monthly utility costs.

The programme has been running for the past seven years. The areas targeted for prepaid meter upgrades in the coming months include Bellville South, Manenberg, Bonteheuwel, Langa, Crossroads, Steenberg and Hanover Park.

More housing in Atlantis

Several projects will provide thousands of homeownership opportunities.

In the coming months, the City's housing projects in the Atlantis area should provide as many as 3 600 housing opportunities to local beneficiaries, including gap-market serviced sites and Breaking New Ground (BNG) state-subsidised houses. The City has made 69 serviced sites available in Robinvale, Atlantis, for the purpose of developing gap housing opportunities.

The plots range between 160 m² and 270 m² in size. They form part of the City's commitment to meet the needs of beneficiaries whose monthly income exceeds the minimum threshold to receive state-subsidised housing, but who do not earn enough to be able to buy properties in the private market.

Applications for the gap-market serviced plots can be handed in at the City's Wesfleur Office in Atlantis from March 2021.

Morningstar beneficiaries move in

After lengthy delays as a result of court action by the Morningstar Development and Upliftment Initiative (MDUI), 166 qualifying beneficiaries are now finally able to move into their new homes in the Morningstar housing development in Durbanville.

The City invested R34,2 million in the Morningstar project, resulting in the construction of 166 BNG houses. These have been ready for handover since September 2018, but this was delayed because of the MDUI's court opposition to the City's beneficiary allocation process.

The legal process resulted in negotiations between all parties, and an amicable settlement in October 2020.

Wallacedene sites serviced

In Wallacedene, the City is providing 269 households with one-on-one services and access ways for basic and emergency service delivery. When completed, the sites will have sewer and water connections and receive roads and stormwater services.

The project, which is expected to be completed by the end of 2020, is in line with the City's commitment to bring greater formality to informal settlements wherever possible, and to mainstream basic services.

The City has set aside more than R4 billion for the formalisation of informal accommodation such as informal settlements and backyard dwellings in the coming years.

Best destination in Africa - again

Cape Town has been awarded yet another accolade as a leading tourism destination. At the recent prestigious 2020 World Travel Awards, Cape Town was again named "Africa's Leading Festival and Events Destination".

This is the third consecutive year that Cape Town has received the award. This year the city outshone a number of very strong competitors to take top honours, among them Accra, Durban, Johannesburg, Kigali, Lagos, Marrakech, Nairobi and Rabat.

The City's Events Permit Office has already received 80 new event applications since the announcement of alert level 1 in late September.

On the A-list for climate action

The City has again made the Carbon Disclosure Project's (CDP) Cities A-list of best-performing global cities, scoring an A for its climate change data, transparency and action.

Cape Town was one of only 88 cities worldwide, and the only city in Africa, to receive the highest rating for the CDP Cities submission in 2020.

The top ranking underpins and validates the City's process of developing a new Climate Change Strategy and Action Plan, which is scheduled to be finalised by early 2021.

The strategy recognises climate change as a key risk to the economy, society and environment, but also sees it as an opportunity to drive transformation to a green economy.

Burial tariff myth

The City is aware of social media posts implying that an extra tariff is levied for after-hours Muslim burials.

The after-hours burial requirements of Cape Town's Muslim community are accommodated at no extra cost at the Klip Road, Wallacedene, Delft, Welmoed, Maitland, Muizenberg, Modderdam, Khayelitsha, Ocean View and Atlantis cemeteries.

The tariff at all City cemeteries is R920 per grave, irrespective of the time at which the burial takes place.

A fun-filled day horsing around in Mamre Horse owners from Mamre enjoyed yet another successful Equestrian Day on Saturday 14 November. Mamre is known for its horses, and many residents either own or ride one.

The Equestrian Day, first held in 2013, embraces neighbouring communities such as Atlantis, Pella and Darling.

This year 48 participants competed in groups according to their ages: children under eight (some as young as five), 10-to-14 year olds, 15-to-18 year olds, and anyone over 18 (of whom three were women). As in previous years, vets checked the horses prior to the event, and all participants were required to wear a helmet.

There were seven types of event, including can on a stick, musical chairs, orange pick, egg on a spoon, horse handling, bag racing and horse racing.

The competition was fierce, and the winners received prizes such as horse feed, saddles, stirrups, bridles, reins and other horse-related items.

No-one went home empty-handed. All participants received something, either for themselves or their horses.

The City joined a number of local businesses in sponsoring the Equestrian Day.
